説明

A disposable transparent eyeshade includes a soft frame in flexibly compressed thickness with a hole capable of being seen through, and flexible plastic transparent thin slice with flanges on the rim for connecting. Flanges can be covered and linked with soft frame; the linkage between flange and soft frame is airtight joined and the inner surface of the frame is airtight joined with face skin. The integration of transparent flexible plastic thin slices and soft frame produces small and light weight eyeshade, which effectively prevents saliva virus or poisonous gas, dust to enter human eyes, and is disposable after single use.
